Based on the premise that high-quality programs for young children are an essential support for families—a part of the family ecosystem—this resource demonstrates how managers of programs for young children must understand the value of family, as well as the relationships between family, program, and community.

Part I of Management of Child Development Programs provides an overview of the demographic and theoretical context within which child development programs operate. Part II focuses on 12 core competencies, derived from a review of currently literature in the field and aligned with NAEYC accreditation criteria, including: personal and professional self-awareness; organizational, fiscal, and personnel management; human relations; facilities management; health and safety; food service; educational programming; family support; marketing and public relations; assessment and evaluation. The Enhanced Pearson eText features embedded video and internet resources.

Gerald Wright:

As a university student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher expected them to go to the library or even make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's spirit or real their leisure activity. They just do what the teacher want, like asked to the library. They go to presently there but nothing reading seriously. Any students feel that studying is not important, boring and can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated. Book is very important for yourself.
