“Sometimes you had no idea just how badly you hurt until you stopped hurting.” - Tana

Two weeks of camping had Tana Jackson bouncing with joy. No chirping mobile phone once she turned it off, no television, nothing but peace and quiet, nature, and the hard work of hiking up a mountain. Tana's idea of heaven. Then she discovers a village full of crazy cult members that are bound to ruin her trip. An accident leads to Tana's introduction to the village and the crazy idea that she's somehow stumbled into a parallel universe. Unfortunately, Kajika, the sex god that she meets upon waking, turns out to be more of a scummy demon and makes her time there a nightmare.

Injured and knowing she won't be able to get off the mountain, Tana settles in to learn more about the villagers, and comes to respect the people there, even if they are in need of mental help. There's a lot of talk about the Land of the Living and the Spirit world, and it's all too much for Tana to deal with. Between Kajika's nastiness and a fear that she's starting to fall for the cult's beliefs, Tana determines to leave.

As she fights to get back to the Land of the Living, she also starts to fight back against Kajika, and slowly she wears him down until his attitude changes entirely. A horrifying discovery could soon change Tana's future and she'll have to make a choice, a life with Kajika or freedom from the world entirely? Only Tana can make that choice; but the new life she leads, the new love and friendships she has could be the deciding factors in the most important decision of her life.
