This book is unique because it contains ten illustrations relevant to the text, while the original is not illustrated.

"After the Turkish War (1877-1878) the author made a series of travels in the Orient. One day, while visiting a Buddhist convent on his route, he learned from a chief lama, that there existed in the archives of Lhasa, very ancient memoirs relating to the life of Jesus Christ and the occidental nations, and that certain great monasteries possessed old copies and translations of those chronicles.
